Directors Notes

When picking the theme for this years shows, I was really drawn to villains. I really wanted to show the students that sometimes there is more than meets the eye when it comes to figuring out who the “villain” is in a show. At first glance, one would believe that Abby and Martha are the bad guys, however, as an audience member you truly fall in love with them and want them to succeed. Theater is something that you can use to learn anything with, and this year, the students are learning to look past the initial thought of a person and really look at the person's true character.
